DOCUMENTED NEVADA WOSB CONTRACTOR FCI EXPOSURE RECORD ASSESSMENT

Contract Value and FCI Exposure Depth

Supply chain assessment processes operating across this population observe that WOSB-designated contractors in Nevada whose contract award values have increased carry FCI exposure that extends beyond the scope documented in their Active FCI Posture Records under FAR 52.204-21. The currency of the record is present or absent at the point of review. Higher contract values correspond to broader FCI exposure surfaces. The documentation either reflects the boundary as it currently exists or it does not. Where a contract modification or new award expanded the value threshold, the FCI boundary expanded with it. The record produced before that expansion does not cover the new boundary. The record contains both at the same point in time. The WOSB certification renewal period and the contract value increase occupied the same assessment cycle. Peer contractors within the same regional certification population whose award values changed during the same period present records where the coverage is absent for the expanded scope.

Documentation Coverage Across Value Thresholds

The coverage dimension of the Active FCI Posture Record corresponds to the full FCI boundary as it exists at the point of assessment. Documentation whose recorded scope does not extend to the organization's current FCI environment does not present as present. Contract value increases carry domain-level exposure changes. Access control configurations expand. System boundaries extend. Physical protection requirements change with new personnel and new facilities. The record is current with respect to the present boundary or it is not. Supply chain assessment processes operating across this population do not reconstruct the sequence of contract modifications. They observe the record's coverage against the boundary as it exists. Neither condition displaces the other in the record. The certification attestation event was completed. The documentation was not updated to reflect the expanded boundary. Both conditions occupy the same observable period. Peer contractors within the same regional certification population present records where coverage is absent across the domains affected by the value increase. Documentation whose last confirmed state predates the current environment does not demonstrate currency. A record in which the documented scope and the actual scope no longer correspond is not present at the point of review.
